

"Serving the Church by Reaching the Children"

November 2023

Dear Friends,

The first month of Released Time Bible Class is in the books, so by now most of the thoughts of a busy summer are muted. It was a summer with multiple opportunities for filling pulpit and teaching children through being a guest children's church speaker and being a regular summer teacher at my church.

Released Time Bible Classes are going well. What stands out, and is humbling to know, is the value many children place on attending class and their interaction with me. There have been many "I missed you" and "When is our next class?" comments. The children are doing a great job with the music, to the point that there are times when I just listen to the children as they sing and worship. As always, I strive to be a faithful teacher of God's Word and, as much as is practical, answer the children's questions and concerns. When they come up, I listen to their prayer requests and include them in prayer time before the lesson. We also have a lot of new students whom I hope to reach and teach, as well as some repeat students that I still hope to somehow reach. One student did speak to me after class and told me that he only attended class to get out of school. I used the opportunity to ask if, by attending, he understood how to become a Christian if he chose to do so. He told me that he did, and I confirmed his understanding with a few questions. My reply to him was, "I am glad that you came today." Perhaps he will speak with me again, telling me that he has accepted our Savior!

We are still working through options for the Michigan Center classes. It does appear that we will eventually get things started, but the process is slow. Please keep praying! My hope is that we not only get classes started, but that Jesus would be lifted up before all involved.

As always, I want to thank you for all that you do: praying, giving, serving, and encouraging. Since Thanksgiving will soon be here, I would like to leave you with this month's memory verses from my church:

1 Thessalonians 5:16-18

Rejoice evermore.

Pray without ceasing.

In every thing give thanks: for this is the will of God in Christ Jesus concerning you.

With much gratitude and love,

David Kurowicki
