I hope your 2024 is starting off well! I have just a short financial update. What is exciting, is that since my last update, my monthly committed support has risen. I am currently at 66%.

What is more exciting than all that is that we serve a sovereign, all-knowing God, who's timing and plan is perfect. He already knows how and when I will get to the field.

My financial coach and I have set a departure goal that we think is certainly doable. I would love to arrive in Vienna in the spring. This requires applying for a visa at a certain time. In order to apply for the visa, I would be required to start drawing a full salary. I won't be using this salary at this point; I just have to be able to prove to their government that I can support myself and wouldn't be a financial burden on their economy.

However, at this point, we do not think it is yet wise to start drawing the full salary from my funds. Even though my monthly commitment is relatively high, the funds in my outgoing budget from which my salary would be drawn is low.

I am asking you to prayerfully consider giving a one-time gift. There is a link at the bottom.

At the end of this month my missions coach and I are going to rediscuss drawing the full salary. If we decide that it is still unwise to begin doing this in February, we will revisit the conversation the next month. Even though we may have set our goals, we know that God's timing is perfect. We take steps forward in faith. How grateful I am that we serve such a capable and big God!
